ATTACKS ON THE WHITE POPULATION OF SOUTH AFRICA

It is with great zeal and responsibility that the I B A has decided to collect the statistics concerning attacks on the white population of South Africa, and to make this information available through a database. The information has “come to life” through the suffering and cruelty of unprecedented nature, captured in columns and on photos.

Such attacks are mainly focused on white farmers and their families, friends on their farms, and villagers in their “safe havens”. The abuse and murder of whites occur underneath the roofs of hospitals. Intimidation and death threats also occur because the whites want to use the same form of transportation, for e.g., mini bus taxis. When did it become safer to hitch hike? Unfortunately for the poorer white populace, this is often the only option available to them.

The I B A has decided to make this information available, since it is often ignored by the mass media. Horrifyingly, this information is listed on the South African Police Service’s official statistics as “robberies” only. The pain, suffering and losses which occur during these attacks are much greater than mere housebreaking. Murder, rape and torture are hidden underneath “robberies”, and put forth as such on the official statistics of the South African Police Service.

The I B A team constantly working hard in the gathering of the above-mentioned data and information, are:

Basil Swart : Chairperson of the Independent *Boer Activists

Lourenca Miesner : Head: Statistics

Any information concerning the above can be sent to our email address, at: indbact@aol.com

* The descendants of the Dutch-speaking Free Burghers (Citizens) of the Eastern Cape frontier.

2022 FARM ATTACKS

How the ANC brainwashed the world to accept slaughter of SA farmers

February 22, 2020

The more the ANC's criminal nature, incompetence and large scale looting is revealed, the more the ANC needs to keep the narrative in place that all land was stolen by whites. This of course is to keep black majority support.

The ANC, supported by liberal media, is deliberately creating the notion that whites are evil thieves against who the black majority needs to be protected. This perception leads to a sort of justification amongst the black majority, the international community and even some whites who are naive that it is acceptable to murder and rob whites.

A target is in other words being painted on the white community and this has been happening for decades. As an example, it should be remembered how the ANC MP Duduzile Promise Manana shouted "Bury them alive" in Parliament, referring to white farmers, when Dr Pieter Mulder of the FF Plus initiated a debate on farm murders in 2017.

This narrative – Cyril Ramaphosa is a good example of a man speaking in narratives and code – is being used by the ANC – and accepted by the international liberal world and liberal media – to justify the suppression of minority rights. Of course the Courts including the Constitutional Court are just an extension of the ANC ideology and it is after all the ANC that appoints the judges. The regular and constant attacks on whites also lead to the white minority – who are really the ones who should care most – being left numbed and starting to put their heads in the sand because they are unable to deal with it anymore.

Because the ANC is so good at twisting history, they own the narrative of the absolute evilness of apartheid and whites in general and that situation in turn seems to lead to a situation where the international community don't seem to care about the large scale farm murders and general onslaught against the white minority.

The ANC narrative is strengthened in various ways, for instance school history books. Now that the ANC completely owns history and the narrative of the day, they felt safe to implement expropriation without compensation.

If the white minority and especially Afrikaners wants to reverse the trend of slow extermination of our ethnic group, we will have to do more to stand together in a true movement so that resources can be pooled to better represent us. In this regard it is important to remember that liberal media will always take the ANC side for financial reasons.

All the major mainstream media houses in South Africa were already captured by the ANC and black elites supporting them, so it will be vital for the white minority and also the coloured minority to support our own media platforms that gives our perspective and tells our stories.

79 People murdered per day in South Africa- January to December 2022

February 18, 2023

Like the energy crisis, South Africa has a crime problem that has taken on disastrous proportions and needs to be urgently addressed, before it is too late to turn it around, like Eskom.

A total of 27 066 people were murdered in South Africa between January and December last year.

That equals 2 256 per month or 79 per day.

The figures for every other crime category are equally shocking.

On 17 February 2023 the crime statistics for October to December 2022 make it abundantly clear that the Minister of Police, Bheki Cele, has lost the fight against crime.

A new minister is urgently needed to turn the situation around.

The question remains whether President Cyril Ramaphosa will be willing to act or is he is simply going to stand idly by and look on as crime continues to grow out of control, just like he looked on while Eskom was collapsing on his watch.

All crimes in the category where the crime is specifically committed against a person (contact crimes) increased sharply in comparison to the same period last year.

That includes murder (7 555, increased with 10,1%), sexual offences (9,6%), attempted murder (24,3%), assault with the intent to cause grievous bodily harm (8,7%), assault (12%), robbery (21,2%) and armed robbery (10,8%). The average increase is 11,6%.

Concerning sexual offences, rape increased with 9,8% and sexual assault with 4,1%.

The rise in contact crimes was 14,75% in the previous quarter.

With regard to the trio crimes, hijackings (compared to a year ago) increased with 2,8% and robberies at residential premises with 8,6%.

Robberies elsewhere decreased very slightly with 3%, which is basically the only ray of hope. Truck-jackings rose with 9,8%, though.

The spike in the so-called less serious crimes is just as significant.

This is the type of crime that ordinary South Africans deal with on a daily basis, like break-ins at their homes (up with 7,4%), theft of cars and motorbikes (3,3%), theft from vehicles (9,9%) and shoplifting (23,3%), which has a massive impact on daily life.

This means that in addition to the threat to people themselves, their property is also increasingly being targeted.

South Africans, who are already struggling due to the shrinking economy, must incur great expenses to secure the safety of themselves, their loved ones and property, while the police force offers less and less protection.

The FF Plus wants to see whether the police paid any attention to the finding of the Auditor-General (AG) last year that the figures released by the police in its crime statistics are not correct.

According to the AG, the reason is that the statistics often do not correlate to the number of crime dockets.

It frequently happens that people report crimes, but are never given a case number.

The FF Plus will address questions to the Minister about this to find out if any steps have been taken to rectify the problem.

How to read South Africa's quarterly crime statistics

Numbers and statistics are essential for understanding crime. They tell us how many crimes were recorded during a certain period, the types of crime, and where they took place (or, at least, the police station where they were reported).

Using this data we can calculate crime “rates” — such as how many crimes take place in an average day, month or year, or how many crimes occur based on the population of the precinct, province or country.

If we have the stats from previous months and years, we can also look at whether crime numbers or rates have changed over time.

When we compare incidence of crime across longer periods of time, or between different areas, it's important to use crime rates per person, as population figures change over time and vary between places.

For example, Gauteng province has high numbers of reported crimes but also the largest population in the country — more than a quarter of all South Africans live in Gauteng.

When we want to compare changes in crime over a short period of time, or within the same area, we can compare both raw numbers and crime rates to understand short-term shifts and local trends.

This is one reason why it's so important to have regular, and regularly updated, crime statistics. Until fairly recently, the South African Police Service (SAPS) only provided new crime statistics once a year, and for the previous reporting year.

This meant that by the time the information was released some of it was more than a year and a half old. This was okay for comparing long-term trends but less helpful for spotting and addressing crime issues as they were happening.

In 2020, the SAPS started releasing quarterly crime statistics, for three-month periods. This allows us to get closer to real-time insight into crime in South Africa. But reading these numbers still requires accuracy and context.

The problem of inaccurate and out-of-context crime stats

News reporting on crime stats in the first years of the Covid pandemic highlighted why both accuracy and context are important.

In April 2020 police minister Bheki Cele announced that 87,000 complaints about gender-based violence (GBV) had been received in a single week — a claim widely and prominently repeated by media.

Except, as Africa Check revealed, the correct figure was 2,300 complaints during the first week of lockdown in March 2020. The 87,000 was the total number of GBV complaints for the whole of 2019.

In August 2021, when SAPS released crime statistics for the first quarter (Q1) of that year, news reports headlined claims that violent crime had skyrocketed, with infographics showing, for example, that murder had increased by a staggering 66% over the same quarter of the previous year.

This information was accurate, but it was misleading because it compared crime statistics from Q1 of 2021 with those of Q1 of 2020.

In the latter period South Africa (like many other countries) was under strict lockdown conditions that severely restricted people's movement — and which saw drops in all forms of reported crime, most particularly in so-called contact crime.

News reports were comparing the same region over a similar time frame, but it was an unsuitable comparison because of the vastly different circumstances in each year.

What's also clear in these examples is the important role the media plays in reporting crime. News platforms have come a long way since I wrote Africa Check's guide to crime statistics in South Africa nearly a decade ago.

Today, newspapers and news sites often produce credible graphs, infographics and analyses of the latest crime data. Many of these are helpful in visualising and understanding crime incidents and trends at a glance.

But South African media is still prone to emphasising sensationalist — not moderate — data.

As my own work researching violence and media demonstrates, this contributes to skewed perceptions of crime and risk that don't always match the reality of where and how crime happens, or who it affects.

A worrying increase in violent crime

The latest crime statistics, for the second quarter of 2022 (July to September), are an important benchmark for South Africa. This is the first time since March 2020 that we have successive crime statistics not influenced by lockdowns, curfews and alcohol bans.

But comparing the latest statistics to the same period in 2021 may still be misleading, as in that year South Africa still had some restrictions to control the spread of Covid. So I prefer to look at reported figures for 2018 and 2019 when comparing crime numbers between years.

For the last decade, violent crime in South Africa has been on the increase. The 2022 crime data shows that not only have many crimes recovered to pre-pandemic levels, but in a worrying number of categories they have started to exceed the numbers recorded in 2019, the last year before the pandemic.

This is mainly notable in cases of murder, attempted murder and robbery with aggravating circumstances. Sexual offences have also shown increases, although these are less reliable given the vast under-reporting of sexual offences.

Murder

South Africa is currently on track to post its highest murder numbers in 20 years. This requires more than just general alarm, as a closer look at the statistics highlights particular regions as being mainly responsible for the jump.

Almost all provinces show increased numbers of murders per person, but the highest increases are in the Eastern Cape and KwaZulu-Natal. Both provinces had relatively high murder rates even before the pandemic, and the rise in murders in KwaZulu-Natal may be linked to the aftermath of July 2021 riots, and even the April 2022 floods. (Natural disasters can fracture unstable social structures, resulting in interpersonal violence.)

Similarly, the rise in murders in the Eastern Cape might be linked to the province's disastrous response to the Covid pandemic — it had, by far, the highest number of excess deaths per person in the country. This in turn speaks to poor political management, resulting in collapsing health systems and other essential infrastructure, problems that long predate Covid.

Gauteng has also seen a notable rise in the number of murders, although the steepness of the growth is offset by the province's large population. This, together with growth in other types of contact crime, suggests a broader issue with criminal violence.

Issues of rapid urbanisation or in-migration, and unemployment as a result of the pandemic, may have played a role.

Gauteng (and the Western Cape) experienced the highest levels of in-migration during Covid, as people moved to urban areas in search of work.

This type of disruption can contribute to social instability and volatility, which would be compounded by the country's extremely high unemployment rate.

Other concerning trends revealed in the latest stats include continued growth in the number of mass killings and in the share of murders committed with firearms.

Gun ownership is a hotly contested topic, but research has consistently shown that tighter gun controls reduce murders, and that even the presence of a firearm during a robbery increases the likelihood of someone being killed.

Although femicide is not a distinct legal or criminal category, police figures for the murders of women also indicate South Africa is on track to a possible record-breaking number of femicides — well above 3,000 female homicides, if current trends hold. If the femicide rate shows a higher rate of increase than the overall murder rate, this would be cause for specific concern.

Other contact crimes of concern: hijacking and kidnapping

Gauteng typically records the highest number of contact crimes in the country. This is because it's the most populous province — and a major economic hub. In simple terms, there's more to steal.

Data from Gauteng provides an interesting barometer on crimes like robbery and car hijacking.

Robbery requires contact between perpetrator and victim — if there's no contact then it's counted as theft — which creates a greater risk of violence.

Recent trends in Gauteng's data show that, while home and business robberies are close to or even slightly below pre-pandemic levels (in other words, high but not higher), carjackings and truck hijackings have jumped since 2018 and 2019.

Robbery and hijacking in Gauteng

Crime	July to Sept 2018	July to Sept 2019	July to Sept 2020	July to Sept 2021	July to Sept 2022
Carjacking	2,021	2,320	2,435	2,518	2,945
Robbery (residential)	2,166	1,903	1,942	1,829	1,906
Robbery (non-residential)	1,816	1,790	1,552	1,573	1,576
Truck hijacking	157	163	248	253	335

(Source: SAPS)

This has a direct connection to another crime category that's shown steep increases, and often makes headlines: kidnapping. More than 40% of kidnappings across the country, and nearly 55% of all kidnappings in Gauteng, are linked to vehicle hijacking. (The second-largest number is linked to robbery.)

This suggests a worrying change in the methods of carjackers and robbers. It requires an urgent response not only from the SAPS but also from private security companies. Commercial solutions like digital surveillance tools (cameras and so on) are not going to be much good in preventing kidnapping. Millions have been spent installing privately owned CCTV cameras across wealthy suburbs, but these have likely done little except enrich suppliers.

It should also be pointed out that cases linked to alleged human trafficking make up just over 0.5% of reported kidnappings. The media and NGO lobby groups emphasise trafficking as a present and rising danger, but there is no evidence that this is so in the vast majority of cases.

Crimes detected as a result of police action

“Crimes detected as a result of police action” are usually arrests resulting from things like roadblocks looking for drunk drivers, drugs and ammunition, or due to other coordinated police action. This category dropped by over 30% in the second quarter.

We might expect arrests for, say, drug possession to decline (due to draft changes in the law against cannabis possession and use), the data suggests that the drop is largely because of reduced police operations and not due to an actual reduction in crime. So: fewer roadblocks (which we might all celebrate), but also fewer in-person, on-foot police operations. More questions about police deployment need to be asked for us to better understand these numbers.

STATISTICS ON HOME INVATIONS AS SEEN IN THIS ARTILCLE

Experience of crime in SA increased over the 2021/22 period

Over the past few years, South Africa has seen rising levels of crime. The issue of crime is one that is experienced by almost all citizens, irrespective of their economic status or where they live.

New data released by Statistics South Africa shows that household crimes experienced in the twelve months preceding the interview increased compared to 2020/21, with the exception of theft of motor vehicles, which decreased. Individual experience of crime has also increased, with the exception of street robbery, which dropped in 2021/22. According to the Governance, Public Safety, and Justice Survey \(GPSJS\) 2021/22, the percentage of adults aged 16 years and older who felt safe walking alone in their neighbourhoods during the day decreased from 84,8% in 2020/21 to 81,3% in 2021/22.

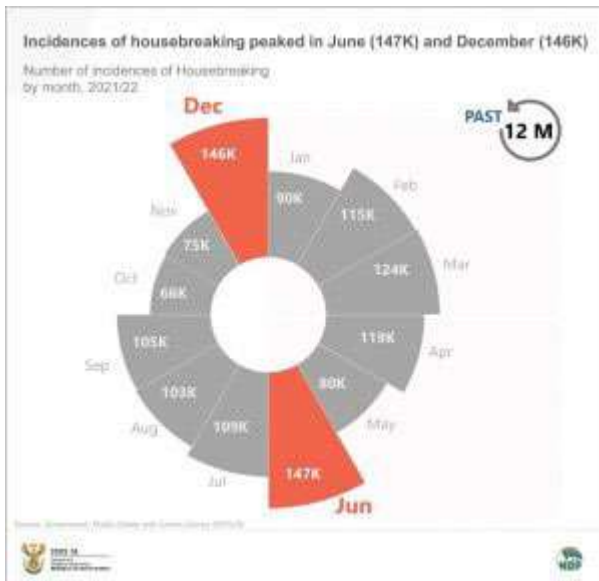

Housebreaking is the most common crime experienced by households in South Africa. A total of 983 000 households experienced housebreaking incidences in the 2021/22 period. The second most common type of crime experienced by households is home robbery, affecting 155 000 households. Assault is the third most common type of crime, affecting 99 000 households. Data shows that the experience of crime by households has increased for housebreaking, home robbery, assault and murder. The experience of theft of motor vehicles by households declined from 81 000 in 2020/21 to 42 000 in 2021/22.

In South Africa, more than two-fifths (41,9%) of households are headed by women.¹ According to the GPSJS, housebreaking was mostly experienced by female-headed households and households in rural areas. There was an increase in the number of households that reported at least one incidence of housebreaking, with 147 000 households experiencing this crime in June.

Farm attack statistics does not reflect separately and are frequently classified and investigated as house robberies. The brutality of these” Home Robberies” are not taken into consideration.

The brutality inflicted on the farmer community are much more gruesome and tortures in general because of the isolation and locations of the farms.

The attacker simply has more time to do their devious crime.

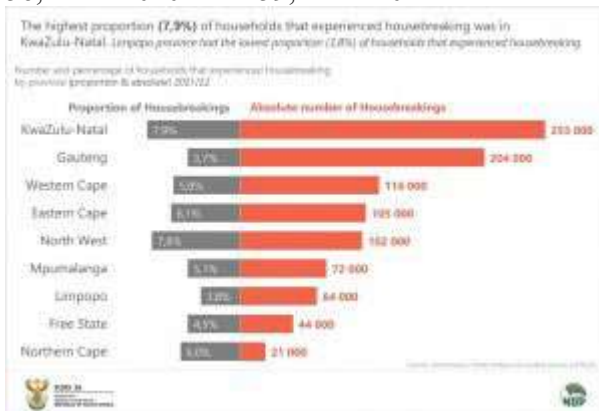

A total of 99 000 households experienced assault in 2021/22; this is almost double the 2020/21 figures. Assault was most likely to be experienced by female-headed households and households in non-metro areas.

Let's take a look at a break-down of the figures by category.
